Congratulations to our Q2 YEAR Award winners!

Individual of the quarter :

Katheline Jean-Pierre, Product Manager Flickr, based in Montreal:

"Under Katheline's tenure, Flickr has passed from rank 3 to 2 in Canada. Many of her achievements were beyond the call of duty including her negotiation of the 2008 partnership between the biggest worldwide photo festival CONTACT08 and Flickr. She always strives to over perform and her passion for Yahoo! is incredible. She is innovative and truly inspirational. Katheline was able to delight her communities via the organization of many Flickr community meetings for the Toronto and Montreal Flickr communities. She is dedicated to showcasing Yahoo! values everywhere she goes."

Manager of the quarter :

Christopher Lacy-Hulbert, Engineering Manager EU Frontdoors, based in London:

"Christo stepped into the Metro boots in Q2 this year, enthusiastically stepping up to that challenge and he has performed fantastically well in that position. He is a great partner for the business. I've had nothing but glowing feedback for Christo from other business leaders. He was recently awarded an 'individual' Odyssey Award (this is a Recognition scheme run in Intl Eng). Rather than accept it personally, he asked for it to be re-cast into a Team award as he felt that was fairer and more accurately recognised the success (which wasn't all down to him). Now that's the mark of a great manager."

Team of the quarter :

Customer Insights Team, Europe, led by Lisa Harris

"Lisa and team were behind the Hello project. Creating clear, factual and comprehensive data and research to support the identification of our most valuable segments. These segments have been adopted across the business and provide a key focus for our audience activities from product development to communications going forward. They then created customer days. Real people who represented our segments were brought into each office and Yahoos were invited to get up close and personal with our customers on a number of topics. The feedback from the days was excellent and Lisa and her team delivered a key part of us putting the customer back at the centre of our business."
